FOREWORD

The Presidential and General Elections held on 11th August, 2016, gave birth to the Twelfth National Assembly of Zambia, composed of new and old Parliamentarians; some Members were re-elected while others were elected for the first time. The Members of Parliament have a five (5) year mandate to represent their people. Their roles are to enact legislation, approve annual national budgets, oversee government activities and policies, as well as discuss all issues pertaining to the welfare of the people they represent.

The Public Parliamentary Handbook is designed to be a source of information for the members of the public on their elected representatives. The Handbook contains details on the Zambian Parliament. The major feature in the Handbook is what could be termed as “Who is who in Parliament.” It contains brief résumés of all one hundred and sixty-seven (167) Members of Parliament. It also contains names and positions of senior officers of the National Assembly. The Handbook also provides some information on the history of the Zambian Parliament since 1924, as well as explanatory notes on some core functions of Parliament such as the law making process and parliamentary oversight through the committee system.

I hope that you find this publication informative, educative and helpful.

Rt. Hon. Mr Justice Dr Patrick Matibini, SC., BA, FCI Arb, MP
SPEAKER OF THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OF ZAMBIA

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE ZAMBIAN PARLIAMENT

The history of the Zambian Parliament dates back to 23rd May, 1924 when the first meeting of the Northern Rhodesia Parliament took place in Livingstone. It was referred to as the Legislative Council. In 1935, the Legislative Council held its sessions at the Government Central Offices (Secretariat Building) in Lusaka, which had become the capital of Northern Rhodesia.

The Legislative Council was established as a central institution representing imperial authority and local interests. The Council mainly accorded the white settlers a say in the running of their affairs. Africans had no representation, but by 1946, it became apparent that Africans needed representation. Two bodies which advocated for African representation were therefore, formed in Northern Rhodesia in 1946. These were the African Representative Council (ARC) and the Northern Rhodesia Federation of Africa. These bodies agitated for African representation in the Legislative Council. As a result, in the Fourth Legislative Council, African interests were finally considered.

The first Speaker, Mr. Thomas Spurgeon Page, MP, was appointed on 10th November, 1948. He served in office from 1948 to 1956 and was succeeded by Sir Thomas Williams in 1956.

The last Legislative Council before Independence was formed after the elections of 28th January, 1964. This was under what was termed as the Self-governing Constitution, which provided for a total of 75 seats in the House. Of these, sixty-five (65) were elective on the main roll for African voters. The main parties in the contest were the United National Independence Party (UNIP), the African National Congress (ANC), and the whites only National Progressive Party (NPP). The results of the election were that UNIP won fifty-five (55) of the sixty-five (65) main roll seats and the ANC, the remaining ten (10) seats. The NPP secured all the ten (10) reserved roll seats.

After the elections, the British Government convened the Northern Rhodesian Independence Conference to which representatives from all the political parties with seats in the Legislative Council were invited. After serious negotiations, the Conference produced an Independence Constitution, which provided for a Legislative Council to be made up of eighty (80) Members.

On 24th October, 1964, Northern Rhodesia became the independent state of Zambia and a Republic within the Commonwealth, and Mr. Kenneth David Kaunda became the first President. The Legislative Council was renamed the National Assembly of Zambia and consisted of seventy-five (75) elected Members and five (5) nominated Members.

The first meeting of the National Assembly was on 14th December, 1964. On this day, the House elected its first Speaker, Mr. Wesley Pillsbury Nyirenda, MP, who took over from Sir Thomas Williams MP.

In 1967, Parliament moved from the old Secretariat at Cabinet Office to its current site, which had just been constructed, on the crown of a low hill in Lusaka. This place was, at one time, the dwelling place of village Headman, Lusaka, after whom the City of Lusaka is now named. A constitutional amendment was passed and assented to by the President on 10th January, 1968. This raised the membership of the House from eighty (80) to one hundred and ten (110), which became the size of the House until 1972 when the First Republic came to an end.

On 19th December, 1968, the Second National Assembly of Zambia was constituted following Presidential and General Elections. In 1973, the Constitution of Zambia Act was passed by Parliament to bring about a one-party government in Zambia. This was Act No. 27 of 1973. Under the One-Party State Constitution, the National Assembly had one hundred and twenty five (125) elected and ten (10) nominated Members, in addition to the Speaker and the President.

This Parliamentary set-up continued up to 1990 when a group of Zambians, including businessmen, intellectuals and labour leaders met at the Garden House Hotel in Lusaka West to plan the political future of Zambia. After the meeting, a pressure group, the Movement for Multi-Party Democracy (MMD), was born. The aim of the group was to pressurise for the re-introduction of multi-party politics in Zambia.

The MMD pressurised the Government to call for a referendum to determine whether the people of Zambia wanted the re-introduction of multi-party democracy or not. It did not take long to realise that the Zambian people favoured multi-party democracy. This gave rise to the amendment of Article 4 of the 1973 Republican Constitution, which authorised the existence of only one political party, UNIP. The Constitutional Amendment repealed and replaced Article 4 of the Constitution through Act No. 20 of December, 1990 to revert the country to a multi-party political system. The Amendment Act also amended Article 64 concerning the composition of the National Assembly, which was increased to one hundred and fifty eight (158) seats out of which one hundred and fifty (150) were elected and eight (8) were to be nominated by the President. The inclusion of the Speaker brought the total number of Members of Parliament to one hundred and fifty nine (159).

On 31st October, 1991, Presidential and Parliamentary elections were held with two main parties contesting, UNIP and MMD. The outcome of these elections was that, out of the one hundred and fifty (150) seats, one hundred and twenty five (125) were won by the MMD, while UNIP won the remaining twenty five (25) seats.

The next Presidential and Parliamentary elections were held in 1996 and the MMD continued to maintain a large majority of seats in the House. The MMD won one hundred and thirty nine (139) seats, Independents ten (10), the National Party (NP) five (5), Agenda for Zambia (AZ) two (2) and the Zambia Democratic Congress (ZADECO) two (2). UNIP boycotted the 1996 elections.

After the elections in 2001, the MMD lost many of its seats in the House. It only held sixty-nine (69) seats in the House and the other seats were shared among six other parties and one (01) independent. These were the United Party for National Development (UPND) forty nine (49), UNIP thirteen (13), the Forum for Democracy and Development (FDD) twelve (12), the Heritage Party (HP) four (04), the Zambia Republican Party (ZRP) one (01), the Patriotic Front (PF) one (01), and one Independent (IND) Member. By September, 2003, this had changed to MMD (74), UPND (44), UNIP (13), FDD (12), HP (2), ZRP (1), PF (2), and one (1) independent Member.

On 28th September 2006, Zambia held its tripartite elections i.e. Local Government, Parliamentary and Presidential elections. These elections were contested mainly by nine political parties. These were the MMD, PF, ZRP, National Democratic Focus (NDF), All People's Congress (APC), and a newly formed party the United Liberal Party (ULP). Three other parties also contested the elections under one umbrella known as the United Democratic Alliance (UDA). This alliance was formed to forge a strong force that would contest the 2006 elections to provide a platform for the election of a new leadership in Zambia. The parties represented under this alliance were the UPND, UNIP, and FDD. However, after the elections, the MMD emerged victorious and won most of the seats in the House. Thus as of 1st January 2007, out of one hundred and fifty (150) seats, MMD won seventy four (74), while PF won forty-three (43) seats, NDF won one (1) seat, ULP won three (3) seats and independents won three (3) seats. Under the Alliance, UPND won twenty-two (22) seats, UNIP won two (2) seats and FDD won two (2) seats. The MMD had an additional 8 nominated Members to make the total of 159 Members including the Speaker.

On 20th September, 2011, Zambia again held tripartite elections in which the PF emerged winner and took over power from the MMD which was in power for 20 years. The elections were contested mainly by nine political parties. These were the MMD, PF, National Restoration Party (NAREP), Zambia for Empowerment and Democracy (ZED), UPND, UNIP, FDD, ADD and HP. Thus, after the 20th September elections, the results were as follows: PF won sixty-two (62); MMD won Fifty-Four (54) seats; UPND won twenty-nine (29) seats; FFD won one (1) and independents got three (3) seats. The PF had an additional 8 nominated Members to make the total of 159 Members including the Speaker.

On 11th August, 2016, Zambia held its latest tripartite elections under the Constitution of Zambia Amendment Act No. 2 of 2016 which provided for inter alia, presidential candidates to have running mates and the winner of the election to poll 50 percent plus one of total votes cast. The PF re-emerged winner. The elections were contested mainly by nine Political Parties. These were the PF, UPND, FDD, the People's Alliance for Change (PAC), the Rainbow Party, the United Progressive People (UPP), UNIP, the Green Party, and the Democratic Assembly (DA).

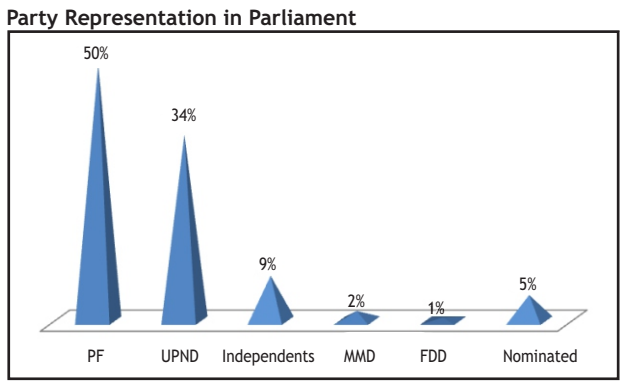

The Constitution of Zambia (Amendment) Act No. 2 of 2016 also impacted on the composition of the House. Instead of having only the Speaker elected from outside Parliament, Members of Parliament also elected the First Deputy Speaker from outside Parliament. The Second Deputy Speaker was elected from amongst the Members of Parliament in the House. In addition to the Speaker and the First Deputy Speaker, the Republican Vice President also comes from outside Parliament, having been elected during the Presidential Elections as running-mate to the Republican President. The total number of Members of Parliament, including the Speaker, the First Deputy Speaker, and the Republican Vice President is, therefore, 167. This is tabulated below:

✓ PF	81
✓ UPND	55
✓ Independents	14
✓ MMD	03
✓ FDD	01
✓ Nominated	08
✓ The Vice-President	01
✓ The Speaker	01
✓ The First Deputy Speaker	01
✓ Vacant	02
✓ TOTAL	167

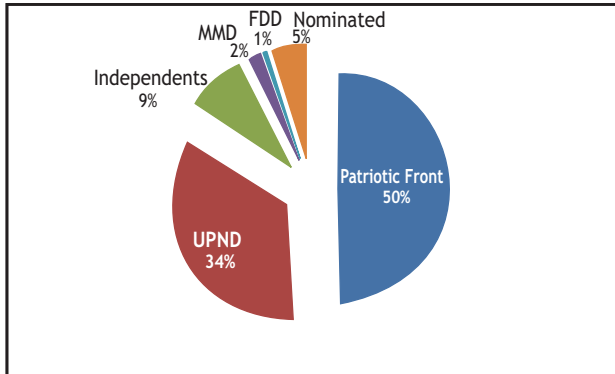

STATISTICAL PROFILE OF THE TWELFTH NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

THE LAW MAKING PROCESS

One of the main functions of Parliament is to legislate or to make laws. The Government or any Member of Parliament who wishes to have a law passed by Parliament brings the proposed law to Parliament. A proposed law is called a 'Bill'. There are three types of Bills, that is:

- a) Government Bill;
- b) Private Member's Bill; and
- c) Private Bill.

Government and Private Member's Bills are called 'Public Bills' when they affect the public as a whole. A Government Minister presents a Government Bill while a Member of Parliament who is not a Government Minister or who is a Member of the back-bench presents a Private Member's Bill. A 'Private Bill' on the other hand is promoted by outside bodies and affects limited sections of the public. A Member of the back-bench presents it to the National Assembly.

The following are the stages through which a bill must pass before it becomes Law:

First Reading

The First Reading of a Bill is when the Minister or the Member presenting the Bill introduces it in Parliament. The presenter simply reads out the title of the Bill. There is no debate on the Bill at this stage. It is instead referred to the relevant Portfolio Committee of the House for consideration.

Second Reading

The Second Reading of a Bill is when the Bill is debated in detail. The presenter of the Bill gives details of what the Bill is all about and what it intends to achieve. The report on the Bill by the relevant portfolio Committee is tabled and presented to the House to inform the debate. Members of Parliament then debate the Bill either by supporting or opposing it.

Committee Stage

The Committee Stage is when the Bill is considered by the Committee of the Whole House. The Committee examines the Bill in detail clause by clause. Members are free to make amendments to the Bill. The purpose of this stage is to perfect the Bill in terms of content, purpose, language and punctuation to ensure that the ideas contained therein are properly expressed.

Report Stage

The Report Stage of a Bill is when the Report of the Committee of the Whole House is considered and debated by the House. Members are free to make further amendments during the Report Stage of the Bill. This stage takes place when a Bill has been amended at Committee stage.

Third Reading

The Third Reading of a Bill is when the Bill is read to the House after the Committee Stage or Report Stage. This is the final stage that the House has to look at the Bill and be satisfied that the Bill has been properly considered and resolves accordingly.

Presidential Assent

After a Bill has been passed by Parliament, it has to be presented to the President for assent. The President signs the Bill and it becomes law. The law takes effect when it is published or at a later date depending on what the Act itself states. A signed Bill is called an “Act of Parliament.” The President may assent to a Bill or resend it to the National Assembly for reconsideration. The National Assembly may amend the Bill based on the President’s reservations or pass the Bill, without amendment, by a vote of at least two-thirds of the Members of Parliament. Where the former is the case, the President shall assent to the Bill within seven days of its receipt. However, where the National Assembly fails to pass the Bill by at least a two-thirds vote, the Bill shall not be presented to the National Assembly in that session. Where the President fails to assent to a Bill within the periods prescribed in Article 66(1) and (4), the Bill shall be considered assented to upon the expiry of those periods.

HOW TO ATTEND PARLIAMENT AS A MEMBER OF THE PUBLIC

Parliament is open to members of the public who may wish to undertake familiarisation tours of Parliament Buildings or to attend sittings of the House, either as individuals or in groups. All those wishing to visit Parliament either for familiarisation tours or to attend sittings of the House can either write to the Clerk of the National Assembly, P O Box 31299, Lusaka, or simply come to Parliament Buildings. Upon arrival at Parliament Buildings, visitors will be required to identify themselves. A passport or national registration card is required for identification purposes. Those to whom permission has been granted to sit in the Visitors' Galleries will be ushered to the appropriate Galleries.

Before gaining access to the Galleries, visitors will be issued with passes by the Sergeant-at-Arms or the Clerk's Office.

All those wishing to visit Parliament are required to wear smart attire, either office or casual wear.

Visitors may not take into the Galleries such articles as walking sticks, umbrellas, briefcases, or parcels of any type, newspapers, magazines or cellular phones. Any such articles must be deposited at the Reception Desk. Visitors to the Galleries will be given copies of the Order Paper, which shows the order in which the business for that particular day will be taken.

While in the Galleries, visitors are not allowed to take part in the proceedings of the House other than rising when the Speaker enters or leaves the Chamber. They are also not allowed to rise or move from one place to another while the Speaker is speaking. They are advised not to take notes, applaud, laugh or converse whilst the House is sitting. They must withdraw from the Galleries when so ordered.

Taking of photographs is permissible. However, visitors wishing to take photographs should seek guidance from the officers accompanying them during their visit.

HOW TO ATTEND PARLIAMENT AS A MEMBER OF THE MEDIA

Pressmen and women wishing to attend sittings of the House should be accredited to the Zambia News and Information Services (ZANIS). The names are then submitted by ZANIS to the National Assembly's Public and International Relations Department. Based on the accreditation list, permanent press passes, whose validity is one year, are issued. Temporary passes are also issued to those whose names may not have been included on the list at the time the permanent passes are issued.

Pressmen and women covering sittings of the House are expected to sit in the Press Gallery. They should at all times ensure that their reporting is factual and that no points that are ruled out of order by the Presiding Officer are recorded. Cameramen and women in the Chamber must not cause any unnecessary obstruction and disturbance to the proceedings.

Those wishing to obtain copies of debates, reports and other documents may do so from either the Publications Department or the Parliamentary Press Liaison Officer.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SPECIAL SECTIONS OF THE PUBLIC

Schools, government officials, tourists, diplomats and others can attend Parliament on the same grounds as any other member of the public. Diplomats may, however, obtain permanent passes for particular meetings of the House through the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

1.0 PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEES

The Constitution of Zambia requires that the Executive be accountable to Parliament. In other words, Parliament is mandated to probe into the Government administration and make recommendations for improvement. To this effect, the Parliament of Zambia has multiple functions of making laws; providing oversight over the Executive's implementation of public policies and programmes, including the national budget; and representing the people. However, not all the work of Parliament related to its functions, such as in-depth analysis and review of public policy can be undertaken in the House. Therefore, the practice in many parliaments, including Zambia, is that most parliamentary business is dealt with in Parliamentary Committees, in order to relieve pressure on the House, and allow for effective consideration of specialised matters. Committees provide an opportunity for more detailed investigation and discussions on various matters. This makes the parliamentary committee system a very important mechanism for ensuring that parliaments perform their core functions effectively and efficiently.

Parliamentary committees have been in existence in Zambia as far back as the pre-independence era. The committees have undergone reforms and procedural changes over the years due to a number of factors such as increased governmental responsibilities and activities. The parliamentary committee system of the National Assembly of Zambia is designed and established to support the National Assembly in the performance of its functions. In Zambia, Committees are established in accordance with Article 80 of the Constitution and Standing Order No. 131 of the National Assembly Standing Orders.

2.0 COMMITTEES IN THE ZAMBIAN PARLIAMENT

According to Standing Order No. 149(4), the Standing Orders Committee is mandated to appoint Members to serve on a Committee of the House. Pursuant to the provisions of Article 80 of the Constitution, Standing Order No. 131 requires that in selecting Members of standing committees, the Standing Orders Committee shall ensure equitable representation of political parties/groups and gender in the National Assembly. It shall also take into consideration the experience and qualifications of individual Members. Further, in accordance with Standing Order No. 146, a Standing Committee may appoint a subcommittee to investigate a specific matter and report to it.

2.1 Types of Committees

Committees in the Zambian Parliament are broadly categorised into two, that is to say Standing and Select Committees. Standing Committees are appointed at the beginning of every Parliament and exist for the life of a Parliament in accordance with the provisions of Article 80 of the Constitution read together with Standing Order No 131(11). Select committees are ad hoc in nature. They are established for a specific purpose, as and when need arises and thus have a limited life, which is determined by their terms of reference. Once a Select Committee has carried out its task and presented its final report to the House, it stands dissolved. For example, a select committee may be constituted to scrutinise a Presidential appointment that is subject to ratification by the National Assembly.

2.2 Standing Committees

Standing Committees are further classified into three as set out below.

2.2.1 House-Keeping Committees

House-Keeping Committees are mainly concerned with matters of the administration and management of the House itself. Currently, there are four House-Keeping Committees as set out below.

i. Standing Orders Committee

The Committee serves as the Management Committee of the National Assembly. It has the mandate to consider all proposals for the amendment of Standing Orders, appoint members to serve on a committee of the House and perform other duties placed upon it by an Order of the National Assembly. The Committee is chaired by the Honourable Speaker.

ii. House Business Committee

The Committee determines the Business to be considered by the House and other matters referred to it by the House. The Committee is chaired by the Speaker and the First Deputy Speaker is the Vice Chairperson.

iii. Committee on Privileges, Absences and Support Services

The Committee has the mandate to examine the privileges and immunities of Members of Parliament. It also examines cases of absenteeism of Members from sittings of the House and Standing Committees. It examines matters related to the comfort and convenience of Members around and within the precincts of Parliament, and advises the Hon Mr Speaker on matters connected to the administration of the Library, Member's Motel and Parliament Radio and Television. The Committee is chaired by the Honourable First Deputy Speaker and the Vice Chairperson is elected among the members at its first sitting.

iv. Parliamentary Reforms and Modernisation Committee

The Committee examines and proposes reforms to the powers, procedures, practices, organisation and facilities of the National Assembly and performs other duties placed upon it by the Standing Orders or an Order of the Assembly. In proposing such reforms, the Committee shall bear in mind the balance of power between the respective constitutional responsibilities, roles of the National Assembly and the Government and the duties of other House-keeping Committees. Debate on the reports of the Committee shall be held in camera. The Chairperson is the Second Deputy Speaker and the Vice Chairperson is elected among the members at its first sitting.

2.2.2 General Purpose Committees

The mandate of General Purpose Committees is not confined to any specific government ministry as the issues that they consider are applicable to all ministries, depending on the situations and the issues involved. The Committees elect their own Chairpersons and Vice Chairpersons at the beginning of a Parliament. Currently, there are four General Purpose Committees as set out below.

(i) Public Accounts Committee

The Committee is mandated to examine the accounts showing the appropriation of sums granted by the National Assembly to meet the public expenditure, the Report of the Auditor General on the accounts of the republic and such other accounts, and is also mandated to exercise such powers as may be conferred on it by the Honourable Speaker or the House.

(ii) Committee on Delegated Legislation

The Committee is mandated to scrutinise and report to the House, whether the powers to make orders, regulations, rules, sub-rules and by-laws as delegated by Parliament are being properly exercised by any person or authority within such delegation. This delegated legislation must be in line with the provisions of the Constitution or statute under which they are made, not trespass unduly on personal rights and liberties, not make the rights and liberties of citizens depend upon administrative decisions, and are concerned only with administrative detail and not amount to substantive legislation which is a matter for Parliamentary enactment.

The Committee is also mandated to exercise the powers as may be conferred on it by the Honourable Speaker or the House.

(iii) Committee on Government Assurances

The Committee is mandated to scrutinise all assurances, promises and undertakings made by the Vice President and Cabinet Ministers on the floor of the House, with the objective of ensuring that these are implemented, and to comment on delays in implementation and also the adequacy of the action taken. The Committee is also mandated to follow up on the implementation of the resolutions of the House on Private Members' Motions and to exercise the powers as may be conferred on it by the Honourable Speaker or the House.

(iv) Budget Committee

Among others things, the Committee is mandated to examine the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure, including the Supplementary Estimates of Expenditure and Excess Expenditure, study, inquire into and report on matters related to coordination, control and monitoring of the National Budget, and examine the Medium Term Expenditure Framework and budget policy statements presented to the House.

2.2.3 Portfolio Committees

Portfolio Committees are provided for under Standing Order No. 157 (1) and as much as possible relate to the structure of Government to ensure that they oversee the activities of the various Government Ministries, and departments and agencies under the Ministries' portfolios. At the beginning of a Parliament the Committees elect their own Chairpersons and Vice Chairpersons. The functions of Portfolio Committees are provided for under Standing Order No. 157 (2). Currently, there are fourteen Portfolio Committees, as set out below.

- (i) Committee on Agriculture, Lands and Natural Resources
- (ii) Committee on Media, Information and Communication Technologies
- (iii) Committee on Education, Science and Technology
- (iv) Committee on Energy, Water Development and Tourism
- (v) Committee on Health, Community Development and Social Services
- (vi) Committee on Legal Affairs, Human Rights, National Guidance, Gender Matters and Governance
- (vii) Committee on Local Government Accounts
- (viii) Committee on Local Governance, Housing and Chiefs' Affairs
- (ix) Committee on National Economy, Trade and Labour Matters
- (x) Committee on National Security and Foreign Affairs
- (xi) Committee on Parastatal Bodies
- (xii) Committee on Cabinet Affairs
- (xiii) Committee on Transport, Works and Supply
- (xiv) Committee on Youth, Sport and Child Matters

3.0 HOW COMMITTEES WORK

At the beginning of each Session, Committees consider and adopt programmes of work which define the course and scope of their activities during a particular Session. Each Committee decides the best way of carrying out its activities based upon its terms of reference. The Committees identify stakeholders to provide them with information on any issues that they are considering. Also, members of the public who indicate interest in making submissions before a Committee on a topic under consideration are allowed to provide information in writing. All the stakeholders submit written memoranda containing the required information to the Committees within a given period. The stakeholders are then invited to appear in person before Committees to give oral submissions and clarify any issues that may arise from their written memoranda.

It is important to note that Standing Order No. 132 empowers the Committee to invite submissions from any person on any matter within its terms of reference, subject to the provisions of Part III of the National Assembly (Powers and Privileges) Act, Chapter 12 of the Laws of Zambia, as amended by the National Assembly (Powers and Privileges) (Amendment) Act, No 13 of 2016. Standing Order No 141(1) further empowers the Committee to retain the services of expert, professional, technical and clerical staff as may be considered necessary.

Although persons appearing before the Committees are required to observe directives and conform to such rules as Chairpersons shall require in accordance with the Standing Orders. Witnesses do not appear as accused persons, but appear to assist Committees to better understand issues before them.

3.1 Tabling of Committee Reports

It is obligatory for Committees to table annual reports in the House during the Session. Committees table reports in the House which contain recommendations to the Executive on matters they have considered. Once a Committee tables a report, the Chairperson of the Committee presents a motion highlighting major issues in the report and urges the House to adopt the report.

3.2 Action-Taken Report

In accordance with established Parliamentary Practice and Procedure and Standing Order No 147, the Executive should submit an Action-Taken Report to the National Assembly, which should be laid on the Table of the House within sixty days from the date on which a Committee's report is adopted by the House. The Action-Taken Report provides the responses by the Executive to a Committee's recommendations as contained in the Committee's report. In this regard, consideration of the Action-Taken Report is always part of every Committee's programme of work.

4.0 SERVICING OF PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEES

The Clerk of the National Assembly is the Chief Advisor to all Committees. Committees are assisted in all their deliberations by a secretariat of Committee staff led by the Principal Clerk of Committees. The staff in the Committee Department are charged with the responsibility of carrying out administrative, procedural and advisory duties. However, there are some committees which are not serviced by staff in the Committee Department such as the Standing Orders Committee, House Business Committee, Parliamentary Reforms and Modernisation Committee, and Committee on Privileges, Absences and Support Services.

5.0 CHAIRPERSONS AND VICE-CHAIRPERSONS OF COMMITTEES

Except for the Speaker and Deputy Speakers, Chairpersons and Vice-Chairpersons are elected at the first meeting presided over by the First Deputy Speaker or the Second Deputy Speaker and should be of opposite gender. Subject to other provisions in the Standing Orders, the Chairperson and the Vice-Chairperson are expected to hold office for a period of five years. Notwithstanding Standing Order No.131, the Chairperson of the Public Accounts Committee shall not be a member of the political party in government.

6.0 CONCLUSION

Parliament is an organ that plays an important role in ensuring that the principles of good governance and accountability are adhered to. Its powers are derived from the Constitution of Zambia which vests it with the mandate of making laws, representing the people, authorising the expenditure of public funds and overseeing Government activities. It follows therefore, that the function of Parliament is not only to legislate, but also to monitor the implementation of government policy and legislation. The committee system is one of the key mechanisms through which the National Assembly performs its functions.
